Staff split on strike vote

By Alan Dillman

Conestoga college support staff gave a nearly unanimous vote last night to support a strike vote.

During the process of the vote, many of the personnel reported the same concern, often, work 50 per cent or lower of their salary. A reason is reported.

"Three days," according to the staff, have been the only time in the past 10 years that the college has been closed.

The workers, members of the Ontario Public Service Employees Union, have been asked to vote on a strike vote last night, when the college was closed.

College faculty have also been asked to vote on a strike vote. The vote will be held on Oct. 11. Mary Whiting, a member of the faculty, has been asked to vote on a strike vote.

Conestoga College staff, with a 90 per cent turnout, reported the vote by 80 per cent last night to support a strike vote.

Conestoga College president, Dr. James Dutton, said that the college will have to close for a week if the vote is in favour of a strike vote.

Students must pay fee to use computer room

By Jonathan Katz

Students enrolled in electrical technology programs at Conestoga College in their computer class pay a $24 annual membership fee to the University of Waterloo and Waterloo Region.

The fee is to be paid for the right to use the computer room, which is a fee that is paid by the University of Waterloo and Waterloo Region.
